WINDOWS 8 SUPPORT STATEMENT

Oct. 23, 2012

After review of compatibility testing results, inData does not recommend installing or using currently released versions of TrialDirector, TimelineXpress, Timecoder Pro or DepoView software products in the Windows 8 environment. Consequently, support will be not be available for these products with the Windows 8 operating system at this time.

Due to the varying tablet, ultra book and hybrid laptop designs being introduced in the coming months, inData will be working to ensure our software products perform well on each of these platforms. Many of the new tablet designs, such as the Microsoft Surface, will ship with ARM based CPUs and Windows 8 RT which are not designed to run desktop applications, such as TrialDirector. Additionally, many of the new Windows 8 devices will be touch enabled which will require further development to ensure our products are optimized for this environment.

As Windows 8 is more widely adopted in the litigation support market, we will announce which inData software products will be developed and optimized for this platform.
