

25 YEARS OF PROVIDING UNPARALLELED LITIGATION SERVICES

You probably already know inData Corporation for its popular trial presentation software, TrialDirector®, used by litigators across the nation. But did you know that inData also offers professional litigation support services? We've been doing so for twenty five (25) years, before other companies even knew what scanning, coding, and electronic discovery meant.

Here are just some of the ways we can help you with your cases:

Document Scanning

inData can convert your exhibits into vastly more convenient electronic files, such as TIF or PDF images. For an additional cost, you may also choose to use OCR (Optical Character Recognition) technology to read and extract the words within the documents. After the scanning process, an image technician will review each image to verify the image quality, correct rotation setting, and page naming.

Options include:

- › Bates Numbering
- › Image Branding
- › High Volume Printing
- › OCR, and more...

Document Coding

Build a strong discovery database with coding services to catalog your scanned case documents. inData's specially trained operators search through documents and identify information based on your specific criteria. Coded information is then verified and checked for conformity and spelling.

The coded documents can be imported into databases like TrialDirector® or CT Summation® iBlaze, enabling fast, efficient review by your litigation team. We will test load your data into a database to ensure accuracy and program compatibility, before delivering the final coded project on CD.

"inData Corporation is a dynamic, professional company run by people who understand litigation. In particular, law firms who are in the trial preparation "mode" need a service that knows what it takes to present evidence at trial. These highly skilled individuals at inData have assisted me in a number of situations, which includes scanning and blowback services. Their premier abilities are the reasons I keep coming back."

Standard coding fields include:

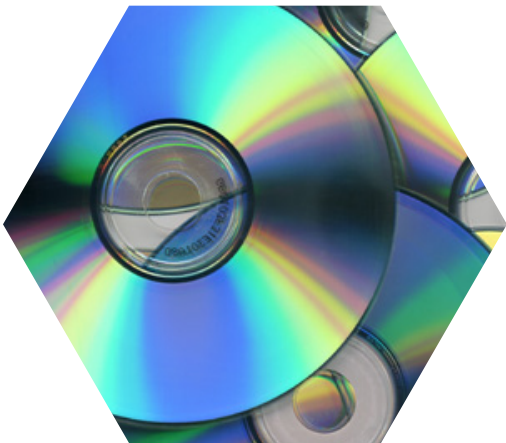

- › Date
- › Copy
- › Author
- › Type
- › Recipient
- › Title

Custom coding fields are available upon request.

Video Deposition Synchronization

inData offers complete deposition video digitization and synchronization services. Our video technicians are trained in the very best quality control processes, assuring your tapes, CDs, and DVDs are processed properly and on time.

Your synchronized deposition is delivered on inData's complimentary DepoView® transcript viewer. With DepoView, you can easily search through a transcript, view the video, and create video clips for trial. DepoView also offers an incredibly easy way to import your synced deposition into programs like TrialDirector, LiveNote®, and CT Summation® iBlaze.

"During my last project, I needed some depositions synched ASAP and was having trouble finding a local vendor who could perform the work in the time frame that I needed it. Another paralegal in our office referred me to inData and I have to say, I was very pleased with the efficient, high-quality service I received."

What is encoding and synchronization?

➤ Encoding

Encoding is the process of converting deposition video tapes to a digital format stored on a CD or DVD. You get quality video that runs on your computer and is easily duplicated.

➤ Synchronization

Your encoded video file is synchronized with the court reporter's ASCII text. Synchronized depositions are the easy way to review testimony, locate key elements, and create and export video clips that contain both the video and the relevant text.
